During this week, I start to build my website.It's a challenge for me, because I never build a website before. To achieve my goal, I start read some books about html and css, and did some useful practice. after that, I designed and build my website. now it just like the image below. I will try to make more functional and beautiful in the next week. Also in this website designed, I placed a part of login and account, so that visitors could login to their account to upload their own images.
